Domenic Biagini Signs National Letter of Intent to Play Baseball at Azusa Pacific University

WHEELING, IL- Drive Performance is proud to announce Domenic Biagini, a Drive Performance member for the past eight years, has signed a National Letter of Intent to play college baseball at Azusa Pacific University in Azusa, California.

Domenic credits his success on the field to using the iTrac Vision Training System, available at Drive Performance. iTrac is a vision training system that players and coaches believe slows the game down. "iTrac greatly helped my concentration at the plate and definitely increased my on base percentage over the years. In fact this past season, I had a batting average of .462 with an on base percentage of .582" Biagini said. He feels these were key reasons he was recruited by a successful program like Azusa.

Eric Maleski, College of DuPage Assistant Baseball Coach; and Director of Training at Drive Performance said, "When you see a player's years of hard work and dedication really pay off, and they get to the next level, that always makes a coach proud."

Domenic played first base and outfield at Hersey High School in Arlington Heights, IL, where he was named First Team All-Conference and an All-Area player. This past season, he played for the College of DuPage.

Drive Performance is Chicagoland's premier provider of baseball and softball training for players of all ages and skill levels. Our dynamic team is committed to helping every player elevate their game via our comprehensive DRIVE to Perform Training Program, state-of-the art training environment, expert instructors and iTrac Vision Training System.
